HAVE A CARE, JOHN!

Admiral Walker's Mission to La Guira

MEANS THAT BRITISH OVERREACHING

In South America Must Come to an End—England's Successive Absorption of Territory—Her Last Bold Strike.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—There are good reasons for believing that the mission of Admiral Walker to La Guira, in the Gulf of Mexico, is a mission more important, perhaps, than any that has been confided to an American naval officer in recent years. The conference which President Harrison held with Acting Secretary of State Adee on his recent visit to Washington, the long consultation between Secretary of the Navy Tracy and Mr. Adee before Admiral Walker's orders were issued, the carefully worked out statement given out through the United Press that the admiral was "directed to pursue a vigorous course in dealing with the situation, especially in connection with foreign aggression," all take on new significance on the supposition, believed to be well founded, that Admiral Walker's mission to La Guira with his squadron, is to proffer the friendly intervention of the United States to the Venezuelan authorities, whoever they may be by the time he arrives there, for the purpose of preventing the final absorption of Venezuelan territory by Great Britain, and further to secure the restoration of the status quo as it existed prior to 1877, and to obtain consent for the submission to arbitration of the question of title to the territory in dispute between the two governments.

The key note of the whole expedition is found in the following extract from a dispatch addressed to Mr. Adee, before the resignation of the state department portfolio, by Mr. Purnan, the Venezuelan minister to Washington: "The Hon. Mr. Adee is already aware that agents of the government of Great Britain have taken possession, unduly and forcibly, of the port of Barima, at the mouth of the Orinoco, which up to that time had been possessed by Venezuela, whose title to it was and is indisputable. It is only necessary to glance at the map of North America in order to see the vast importance of this aggressive step of Great Britain. When a country of the magnitude of Venezuela is placed in a position to control the Orinoco river, and the tributaries it may penetrate as far as Rio de la Plata, Venezuela, is therefore not the only American republic that is at the mercy of the naval power that gets control of the Orinoco river. Colombia, Peru, Bolivia, Brazil, the Argentine Republic and Uruguay are likewise at its mercy. This is not a danger which threatens Venezuela alone; it threatens all America and it, perhaps, more serious than the possession of the Panama canal by a European power, since it would render nugatory the efforts which, through the United States government are now being made by the nations of America to draw lower their family borders, to unite interests, and to have one and the same destiny in future. All those aspirations might be rendered fruitless by the pronouncement and control in the Orinoco of so formidable a power as Great Britain. Her vessels would enter the mouth of the river and would carry to the great centers of population her productions, her ideas and her exclusive interests."

Mr. Purnan, in behalf of the Venezuelan government, earnestly and almost pathetically begged the United States government to intervene to prevent the republic of Venezuela from being absorbed by direct instigation, as it appears, of the queen's proctor under instructions from the colonial office, passed an act asserting British jurisdiction over the gold-mining district of Carabobo, at the headwaters of the Yurari river, and on the 21st of December of the same year the governor of British Guiana issued a decree denying the validity of a grant made by the Venezuelan government for a railroad to Guano, in the Carabobo district, on the ground that it passed "in and over certain territories and lands forming part of the colony of British Guiana."

This assumption was referred to at the time by Secretary Bayard in a dispatch to our minister in London as one which "necessarily gives rise to grave dissensions and creates an apprehension that the territorial claim does not follow historical traditions or evidence, but is apparently indefinite," and Mr. Bayard authorized Minister Phelps to express to Lord Salisbury "his apprehension that the territorial claim does not follow historical traditions or evidence, but is apparently indefinite."

Nevertheless the British colonial authorities lost no time in perfecting their usurpation. Armed forces were dispatched to the Yurari river and took possession without resistance, the Venezuelan laboring under the burden of 100, all the rest of the men at the mines being English. The Venezuelan minister at this period, who was Mr. Olivarez, writing from Paris to Secretary Bayard, very pointedly says: "With these facts before you, your excellency must be convinced that the British government in such proceedings follows a preconcerted plan with the object of gaining possession in the shortest time possible of the whole of the territory of Venezuela, Guiana and of the most important rivers. Already this movement is no longer concealed under pretended boundary rights; it is no longer confined to the capricious lines mapped out by the adventurous engineers upon the charts of that important region in obedience to the will which pays them. England has at last declared emphatically that her rights are without limit and embrace whatever regions may be suggested to her by her insatiable thirst for conquest. She even goes so far as to deny the validity of railway grants comprised within territory where not even the wildest of fancy had ever conceived that the day would come when Venezuela's rights thereto could be disputed. The fact is that until now England has been weak and friendly nation, and seeks to make the Venezuelan coast and territories the base of a conquest which, if circumstances are not altered, will have no other basis than the delirium of her own will."

Returning to his post of duty at Washington, Mr. Olivarez again addressed Mr. Bayard, February 20, 1888, as follows: "The British government's sequences would cause for the independence of South America, if, under the pretext of a question of boundaries, Great Britain should succeed in consummating the absorption of our territory and thereby river as important as the Orinoco. Under the pretext of a more question of boundaries, begun on the name of the Essequibo, we would find ourselves on the verge of losing regions lying more than five degrees away from the river, and under the same pretext a raid has been made from Cape Nassau for the survey of the island of Barima, at the mouth of the Orinoco."

"I greatly rely on the friendly and disinterested offices of the government of the United States, but in the supposition that the British government will continue to regard the case as a simple question of frontiers, and will keep on protesting that she is operating in her own territory, it occurs to me to respectfully suggest to your excellency that the British government for the government of the United States, in view of the recent occurrences, to regard the question under a different aspect and to consider the nature of the situation in connection with this 'different aspect' appears now to be taken by our government, and Admiral Walker has been charged with the mission of bringing about the 'effective intervention' of the United States."

The progressive character of British claims in Venezuela is shown by a dispatch there from our minister, Mr. Sprague, dated Caracas, April 25, 1890, in which he says: "The British occupation by a British police force of a large area of territory south and west of the limits hitherto claimed by England as the boundary of the Essequibo river, and southward of that river, is a grave apprehension here. It will be remembered that Venezuela has steadily maintained, since 1830, that the Essequibo river is the limit of British possessions. It will be remembered that in the earlier stages of this controversy England claimed only to the Pamaron. Subsequently she extended her claims westward to the Gulf of Maracaibo and southward to the river Guayana. Later on, taking advantage of the unsettled political condition of the country, she further extended her claims, first to the river Parana then to the river Uruguay, and finally southward to the main channel of the Orinoco delta as far as Amara, the starting point from westward of what is known as the 'Schomburgk line.' Never, I believe, until quite recently, has England claimed this line as the southern boundary of her colonial possessions. On the contrary, she has more than once explicitly disclaimed any such pretensions. Yet she now not only occupies the entire territory north of this line, but has taken possession of large districts south of it. More than this, she now lays claim to almost the entire territory north of the Carabobo line, and the status quo of 1880, and have the question of boundary referred to arbitration, but without the slightest prospect of success. The British government has thus, in the name of the Essequibo, laid claim to almost the entire territory north of the 'Schomburgk line' and that arbitration is limited to disputed territory south of that line. The Venezuelan officials are now in a position to demand that the British government should restore the status quo of 1880, and have the question of boundary referred to arbitration, but without the slightest prospect of success. The British government has thus, in the name of the Essequibo, laid claim to almost the entire territory north of the 'Schomburgk line' and that arbitration is limited to disputed territory south of that line. The Venezuelan officials are now in a position to demand that the British government should restore the status quo of 1880, and have the question of boundary referred to arbitration, but without the slightest prospect of success."

"Of course the Venezuelan government is not prepared to recognize the bold encroachments; therefore, they would hardly be attempted. The government here has been endeavoring for more than six months past to re-establish diplomatic relations, to restore the status quo of 1880, and have the question of boundary referred to arbitration, but without the slightest prospect of success. The British government has thus, in the name of the Essequibo, laid claim to almost the entire territory north of the 'Schomburgk line' and that arbitration is limited to disputed territory south of that line. The Venezuelan officials are now in a position to demand that the British government should restore the status quo of 1880, and have the question of boundary referred to arbitration, but without the slightest prospect of success."

Honors will be easy so far as concerns the display of physical force. Immediately after the consummation of the seizure of Barima the British authorities ordered three war steamers of their Barbadoes squadron, the Ballenore, the Emerald and the Parkville, to rendezvous in Demara.

"I would rather trust that medicine than any doctor I know of," says Mr. Hattie Mason of Chilton, Carter Co., Mo., in speaking of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. "My children have been very sick, and I can always be depended upon, even in the most severe and dangerous cases, both for children and adults. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Swearingen & Tyler."

with the supposed purpose of intimidating Venezuela and securing the acquiescence in the seizure. Admiral Walker's three cruisers, the Chicago, the Concord and the Kearsage, will very nearly offset the British squadron, and will just a little outclass them.

REFUSED A LANDING.

An Incident Rebellious on Fire Island

AGAINST THE LANDING OF PASSENGERS

From the Quarantined Vessels—Unpleasant Experience of the Unfortunate Prisoners—From Bad to Worse—Yesterday's Work.

QUARANTINE, Staten Island, Sept. 12.—Sunday was not eventful with news of many victims in the cholera fever. Up to sundown there had only been reported three deaths and three new cases among passengers on the Steamer taken to Swinburn Island. Only one death is from cholera.

The transfer of the Normanna's cabin passengers to the Steamington and the placing of the Rigby's passengers on Hoffman Island, and the arrival of the old frigate New Hampshire at the lower bay for use of the cabin passengers of such ships as may be detained were the progressive features in the work of caring for the unfortunate.

Owing to the strong southern wind prevailing outside it was deemed unsafe to send the Steamington to Fire Island, as it was feared she would prove unwelcome. Accordingly, Dr. Jenkins suggested the steamer Cephus, and she was chartered by Dock Commissioner Crane, and at 11 o'clock she arrived at the upper station having on board the commissioner and the chamber of commerce relief committee headed by Seth Lowe.

Accompanied by Dr. Jenkins, the Cephus immediately proceeded to the hospital at Sandy Hook, where the cabin passengers of the Normanna, who had been on the Steamington since Saturday night, were taken on board. Dr. Jenkins turned his face homeward on the yacht Ena Diavolo, and at 7 o'clock as he climbed the stairs of the bluff at the Quarantine station he promised news to the reporters in half an hour.

Just before 7 o'clock the following telegram to the governor was given out as the official review of the day's events: "Roughing P. Flower, Governor, Warren, N. Y.: Have possession of the island (Fire Island), and have transferred first and second cabin passengers of the Normanna and placed them on board of the frigate Cephus at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon. They are now on their way to Fire Island. I will keep you informed of my actions. I am pleased to hear and act upon any suggestions you may make. We have matters in hand and believe that we will be successful in keeping out the disease as we have been successful in keeping it out of the island and shooting from the Rigby and Normanna. The Steamington is as fast as they develop. I have a competent staff, and will employ physicians when the emergency demands it. I have secured assistance offered both from local and national authorities. The steamer Wyoming is not infected with cholera, but will hold her until we are perfectly satisfied of her condition."

The Steamington, offered by Mr. Morgan, was the cause of considerable complaint. The Steamington, given on application to Secretary Tracy, is anchored in the lower quarantine, and will be used until we can complete the arrangements for the reception of passengers at Fire Island. I have placed a competent man in charge of the Steamington, and a competent physician to inspect and look after the passengers. Here also supplied special policemen to patrol Fire Island. The committee from the chamber of commerce waited upon me this afternoon with the following request: Physicians appointed by them and said that "Camp Lewis" at Sandy Hook would be preferred to me as soon as completed for the reception of well people. I shall also act upon suggestions by the medical consulting committee appointed by the chamber of commerce."

W. T. Jenkins, Health Officer. The several vessels will be held at lower quarantine as long as needed for transfer purposes. With much joy the Rigby's passengers received the order to be transferred to Hoffman Island, and it was not possible before on account of the occupancy of the Normanna's steerage passengers, but through the energy of Dr. Walker another building has been prepared so that they can be attended to and at the same time be kept from contact with those of the Normanna. This is the most important step that has yet been made in relieving the distress on the two ships first arrived, Rigby and Moravia.

In spite of the report of the successful conclusion of the Fire Island success, the acquisition is not yet yet satisfactory. As Gov. Flower has so promptly supported the health officers in this particular matter Dr. Jenkins yesterday, wired him of the hitch. The importance of dealing with this and other matters is proved by the fact that Gov. Flower last night wired Jenkins, saying that in view of the further complications in the matter of securing Fire Island, he would leave Waterford at once for New York, and give his personal attention to such matters.

The evidence of the governor's interest is looked upon as significant, and is expected to be fruitful in steps for the relief of the situation. It was 9 o'clock yesterday afternoon when the old frigate New Hampshire went through the Narrows in tow of the tug's assistance of the tug's assistance.

Secretary Foster and S. Babcock went down to inspect the progress of work at the Hook yesterday on the revenue cutter Grant. The tug's assistance consisted of the French line steamer La Champagne, the Ananias, the Columbia and the Wisconsin, besides vessels of minor importance.

TRouble in Store for the Normanna's Cabin Passengers.

QUARANTINE, Staten Island, Sept. 11.

At 9 p. m. it was rumored that trouble was in store for the Normanna's cabin people on board the Cephus. Just before 10 o'clock Dr. Jenkins appeared in the boat-house on the dock and read a telegram from Dr. Nelson, of the city health board, who was at Fire Island, saying: "The Cephus could not land and turned back."

Return of the Cephus to Sandy Hook. QUARANTINE, Staten Island, Sept. 11, 1892. At 9 p. m. a telegram from Sandy Hook to Dr. Jenkins says that the Cephus passed in at 10 p. m. and is lying at anchor in the vicinity of the Steamington. The doctor has finally decided that he will not go down to-night as he considers Dr. Sullivan and Ferguson, who are on board, as fully competent to do all that can be done.

Will Again Send the Cephus to Fire Island. QUARANTINE, Staten Island, Sept. 13, 1892. At 11 p. m. when asked his course today Dr. Jenkins said he should again send the Cephus with the Normanna's cabin passengers to Fire Island. In the face of the coming storm the task may again prove abortive.

IT CURES ASTHMA.

The following letter from a sufferer from asthma shows that relief may be found from this terrible malady. Reid's German Cough and Kidney Cure will help the worst case. Read the following letter:

Stet, Mo., May 26, 1892. Sylvan Remedy Co., Peoria, Ill., Gentlemen:—I would like to say a few words in regard to Reid's German Cough and Kidney Cure as I do not think too much can be said in its praise. I had had asthma for over three years. I doctored with the Western Medical and Surgical Institute of Kansas City for one year, and found their treatment did me no good. I tried various kinds of patent medicines, none of which helped me until last November I tried Reid's German Cough and Kidney Cure. Messrs. Dear & Lester, druggists, of Norborne, Mo., have ordered twenty-one 50 cent bottles for me and I am now taking the seventeenth bottle. For over two years I was a constant sufferer, and not able to do any kind of work. I began taking your medicine in November, and I have not had a bad attack of asthma since. Christmas, I am now in better health than I have been for years. Indeed, I cannot praise Reid's German Cough and Kidney Cure too highly.

Here's What the Plasterers Think of ROCK PLASTER.

WE THE UNDERSIGNED, contracting plasterers, after much experience and observation, take pleasure in testifying
to the practical character of ROCK PLASTER, and while it will remove a not inconsiderable amount of business, namely that of patching, we advocate its use, as it enables us to do work and guarantee the results, and enables us to carry on our trade at all seasons of the year, and modernizes that part of building enterprise which has undergone practically no improvement in the last two thousand years, placing the business of the plasterer on the same footing as that occupied by the other trades through the advent of machinery
and improved methods.

temporary secretary.

On motion a committee on credentials
was appointed with each delegation

each county.

The temporary organization was made

NOT BLOOD BUT MONEY.

That is what George Bartlett
After—$3,000 to $10,000
will suit him.

Saturday night Officers Imboden and Kelly found George A. Bartlett on the streets acting in a strange manner, and they marched him off to the Franklin street station, where he was arrested and looked up for the night. Bartlett was quite fluent in the use of words, and was free in expression of his opinions on various topics. He looked like he had been better days. By occupation he is a bookmaker. His bulging pockets contained old newspapers, lead pencils,
strings, buttons, pieces of leather,
bunches of waste and letters and scraps
without number. There were circles of all kinds, patent medicine advertisements and everything imaginable
that would seem useless under ordinary circumstances. He had printed matter, hotel letter-heads, etc., showing that he had traveled extensively. On circulars and cards were pencil marks, half-completed sentences, addresses and notes. The collection of papers would fill a bushel basket. He had a small sum of money and said he had come in from the city and was looking for a place to live. He had been in the city for some time, but had not been able to find a place to live. He had been in the city
